About twenty-five South Carolina teachers are attending the Summer School at Knoxville, Tennessee. If they have to go away from South Carolina, they cannot find a better place than Knoxville.

When old man Hard Luck tackles the Cheraw Chronicle he has his hands full. For Mr. Stricklin is not easy to defeat. The big press on which the paper is printed, broke down last week at a critical moment, but nothing daunted, the paper came out on time, slightly abbreviated, but still in the ring.

Much credit is due to Mr. R. A. Rouse, County Superintendent of Education, for bringing the State Demonstration agents to Chesterfield. It appears to The Advertiser that Mr. Rouse is an excellent official in the right place and deserves the hearty support in his efforts of the entire county.

That Cheraw is entitled to her chosen pseudonym, the "Tip-Top Town," we do not care to gainsay, but she is compelled to admit that she does not occupy the tip-top all alone. If comparisons between Chesterfield and Cheraw are to be made on the basis of the relative merits of the respective base ball teams, Chesterfield is entitled to notch a little higher than "tip-top."

Clemson College advises farmers to sow Bermuda grass for pasturage. It is recognized as the best pasture grass for the South and while Spring is the best time for sowing Bermuda good results can be obtained in this state under favorable conditions by sowing now and it is better for a man to sow Bermuda now than not at all, if he is in need of pasturage.

At a recent meeting of the South Carolina Farmers Union, held in Columbia, Gov. Manning indorsed the idea of a state warehouse system but added that the warehouse act in this state needed certain amendments. He expressed the opinion that the outlook in South Carolina is brighter than last year. The governor believes that the farmers are better prepared now than they were last year.

When this cruel war is over the South will be called upon to furnish food and clothing for the world. It is a case of good out of evil. No man knows how the war will end but whatever the result the people will need the products of our farm and to feed and clothe the world is a big contract but a contract that America can fill. With the South diversifying its crops raising wheat, corn, tobacco and forage crops, and other things besides cotton, this section will become more prosperous than it has ever been even in the palmy days before the Civil War. Let us all work to that end and we will reap bountifully where we have sown bountifully.

The Chesterfield County Fair can be made a wonderful success if all our people strive to make it so. As the money received from various sources during the Fair above expenses is put back into the improvement of the grounds, each year will see a bigger and better Fair. Let all our people, farmers and business men, work for the Fair. Begin to prepare exhibits that will show what old Chesterfield can do. Produce, stock and poultry can be displayed to great advantage. Let the boys on the farm take an interest in this matter. In Georgia the boys' pig clubs and corn clubs have taken some fine premiums at the County and State Fairs. Let our boys do their best and they will be well paid for their efforts. To keep boys on the farm, make farm life attractive. Give the boys a chance. They will make good every time. A boy's pride and ambition will be stirred when he knows that his efforts are appreciated—that his work is rewarded. And the ladies—they can do a great deal to make the Fair attractive. All working together the Fair will be the best of all.

Do Not Pull Fodder, Advises Clemson

A Costly Practice—Reduces Yield And Injures Seed. Other Good Advice.

On the harvesting of the corn crop Clemson College gives the following good advice.

One of the most costly mistakes of Southern farmers is fodder-pulling. Pulling fodder not only reduces the yield of corn but also seriously injures the vitality of the seed for the following year.

Experiments conducted in South Carolina on the Coker farm in Darlington County, proved that when fodder was pulled when the bottom leaves began to turn, there was a loss of at least 24 per cent in the yield of corn. If pulled when three-fourths of the leaves were dry, the decrease in yield was about 10 per cent.

But this is not the only loss from fodder-pulling. Pulling fodder has a serious effect upon the next year's crop by lowering the vitality of the seed produced on stalks from which fodder was pulled. By pulling fodder, therefore, a man not only loses on his current crop, but also damages his chances for producing a good crop the following year.

A good authority on the subject advises that if a farmer feels he must pull fodder, he should leave at least two or three acres of his crop unpulled and from this select his seed corn. In this way he can keep up the quality of his seed and not suffer the second loss from pulling-fodder, that which comes through planting inferior seed.

MORE GOOD ADVICE FROM CLEMSON
Study and note the varieties of your own and your neighbors' vegetables this year and you will be better able to make a good selection of varieties for your next order of seed.

Are you making preparations for your fall and winter garden? It is now time for planting rutabagas and Purple Top turnips, beets, fall beans, fall beets fall cabbage and other hardy vegetables.

Do not be misled by tree agents who say his trees are superior because of their high price. If you want fruit trees, buy them through your county demonstration agent, who will get good trees for you at a reasonable price.

Clemson College urges farmers to sow large areas to oats this fall. To this advice is added the warning that farmers should get their oats in the ground early and not wait until late, as so many did last year. The seeding of oats should begin about the end of September.

Farmers are advised to sow enough wheat for home consumption. The state has every reason to feel satisfied with the wheat experiment of last fall. Today there are probably more flour mills in South Carolina than ever before and the railroads have granted very favorable shipping rates. South Carolina is now in position to raise enough wheat for her own bread and this is what should be done.

SUMMER SCHOOL

Specially prepared courses for farmers, teachers of rural schools, rural ministers and Corn Club boys will be given in the summer school of Clemson College which opens August 9 and continues until September 4. A large attendance seems certain.

About ninety Corn Club boys will receive free courses at the college during the summer school, these scholarships having been awarded the boys as prizes in their club work.

Pensions Uncaimed

Mr. I. P. Mangum, Clerk of Court has checks in his possession for the following pensioners: Richard Dixon, J. J. Adams, C. W. Bottoms, William Grant, J. W. Pegues, Francis Byrd, Margaret Douglass and Clara Deese. Unless this money is soon called for it will have to be returned to the State treasury.

In case of death of a pensioner the heirs of same are entitled to receive the check now on hand provided the death occurred prior to Jan. 1st of this year.

Good Premiums at The County Fair

Cash Prizes Worth Striving For—Fancy Riding and Driving—An Aeroplane Flight.

Twenty-five dollars in cash will be paid to the farmer making the best general exhibit at the County Fair this fall. Only two things will count: quality and variety. Now is the time to prepare to win fame and to take this easy money.

Ten dollars will be paid in cash to the lady making the best exhibit of canned goods in glass, quality and variety being the main points by which exhibits will be judged. It is possible for any exhibitor to display an even hundred varieties. Many fine specimens are expected in this category.

The arena track at the Fair grounds will be lengthened this year and special attention will be given to fancy driving events—not racing, but riding and driving. The best saddle horse in the county; the best lady rider; best pair of harness horses; most skillful lady driver—all these matters will be settled at the County Fair this fall.

The Association announces that a contract has been closed with the Young Aeroplane Co., of Kansas City, Mo., to furnish an aviator during three days of the Fair. Joseph Pendhryn will give the exhibition and he is a thriller.

Correspondence

VAUGHN

There has been quite a lot of wheat threshed in this section and if cotton brings a low price this fall it will start the farmers in the right way of farming as well as living.

Mr. Spencer Vaughan has given another acre of land to our school and it is thought a new school house will be built soon. The Shiloh boys came up recently for a joint debate. They carried off the decision. M.
